The following are things that you can do now to be ahead of the curve:

- 2. Talk to an NIH LRP Program Officer/Liaison at the NIH Institute and Center that you would like to review your application
- 3. Talk to your mentor, potential recommenders and your institutional business official regarding your interest in applying for an LRP award
- 4. Contact your lender to get specific loan information (including account numbers, amounts owed and promissory notes)
- 5. Make sure you have an eRA Commons ID

Common Mistakes to Avoid

The following can weaken an applicant's competitiveness:

- Not contacting a program officer WELL BEFORE submitting application
- Weak or lukewarm recommendation letters ( kiss of death...)
- Questionable research commitment
- Mediocre research plan
- Rushed application (i.e., mistakes, misspellings)
- Inadequate research environment

Slim publication record

- If your record is slim, NEVER state, "I have a slim publication record, but"; Reviewers can tell by your CV; focus on identifying steps to improve
- Include publication plans in your research plan (shows you're thinking about how to increase)
- Also, your mentor can help here by discussing in their recommendation how they will help you in this area)
